UK Disability History Month is examining disabled artists, artists who have featured disabled people and artists who have identified with the Disability Arts Movement to bring about social change. We aim to create a social model perspective to understand the prevailing historical and present day attitudes towards disabled people, through our portrayal in Art.

We are working with Shape and their NDACA project, National Disability Arts Collection and Archive www.ndaca.org.uk who are collecting and cataloguing the Disability Arts Movement, where the politics of the Disability Movement was and is expressed creatively. We are jointly producing resources for schools and colleges.
